

BOSS GEARY'S HEAD FOUND IN OWN SATEL IN HARBOUR

Diver Found Girl's Travelling Bag at Bottom of Harbor, with Head Wrapped in Her Skirt and a Piece of Oilcloth Like That Found in Two Suit Cases.

SUSAN GEARY'S head, wrapped in oilcloth like that in which her body and limbs were found, has been discovered in the bottom of the harbor where Howard and Crawford, now under arrest in New York, said it was dropped overboard from a ferry-boat.

It was in the dead girl's own gladiator bag, weighted with shot. It was found by Diver Fred Wallace, working independently of the police, who at the time were dragging the harbor with grappling hooks. As soon as the bag was brought to the surface the police were notified, and Superintendent Pierce went to the launch from which the diver had been working. He opened the bag and saw simply that it contained a human head, then ordered it taken to Briggs's undertaking rooms on Howard street. There a more extensive examination was made, and Superintendent Pierce was at once satisfied that it was the head of the missing dancing girl. Medical Examiner Harris will view the head to-day.

The head is in a remarkably good state of preservation, and will be photographed by the authorities today for final identification by Mrs. Catherine Geary, mother of the unfortunate girl. She will then be served the gruesome sight of the severed head in the presence of the authorities.

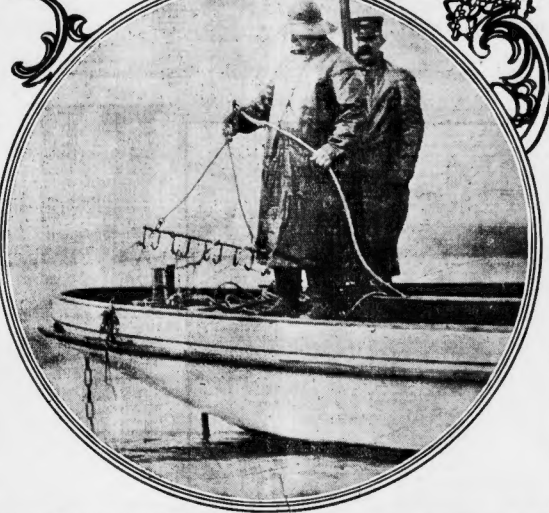

Face Shows Agony.
The face shows that the pretty dancing girl died in great agony, as the marks of pain are plainly visible about her mouth and eyes. One side of her mouth was drawn down, as if the girl was trying to keep the pain that was caused only by death. The expression was contracted and the expression of the whole face told the awful agony of death.

The hair and teeth were as natural as in life and except for the death pucker on the cheeks the face of the dancing girl was still alive. The mouth had set in a smile, but to no slight extent the face was distorted.

The gladiator bag was brought to the surface shortly after a o'clock. The diver, under the direction of Captain Duncan, an experienced diver, had been working for some time in the bottom of the harbor, and had been looking for the head of the dancing girl. The bag was found in the bottom of the harbor, and was brought to the surface.

Followed Howard's Story.
In their confessions Howard and Crawford told explicitly where the head had been thrown overboard. By following the indications given by the diver, the head was found. The work had been done in the bottom of the harbor, and was brought to the surface.

Police Covered Mass Ground.
At 10 o'clock the 19th foot was down. The police were working in about the same locality. They were pulling in the bottom of the harbor, and were looking for the head of the dancing girl.

PATHOS OF DEATH OVERSHADOWS SIN

By Eleanor Ames.
Pathos overshadows condemnation as the real story of Susan Geary's death is shown by those who witnessed it.

The initial play of a young girl cruelly killed, denied the forgiveness of her mother, earned the consolation of the church, compelled to use her last moments of strength in an effort to protect herself from the hands of the police.

KNOW SHE MUST DIE.
Anita was put under the woman's knife.

Still the thought of saving their own lives was paramount in the poor young girl's mind.

It was the thought of saving their own lives that led the young girl to the harbor.

BLONDERA IN BUTTER FOR FRIDAY

Although there are no local news items of great interest, two fight take place outside the city, whose results local fans await. Local fighters and Amelie Herrera clash Friday night at Los Angeles, while Tommy Morant and Young Corbett look up Wednesday night.

Hendon and Herrera were to have met last week, but the Mexican got a post-nasal because of a severe cold. Herrera lost his forfeit for weight and appearance, Hendon taking it.

This will make bad blood between "Lew" and the Mexican, and when they come together they will have a hard battle. Herrera did extremely well here against Kid Goodman, but did not come out as well against Charley Neely at Grand Rapids, Mich. Hendon fought while Fitzgerald only a short time ago and according to all the newspaper accounts had it on him, winning on a foul. Fitzgerald, according to the questionable methods to save himself from a knockout.

Young Corbett is paying the price for his slouch. He is getting punched and hammered and must suffer something "different" if he does not get it from Young Ernie, who respected him hard, Joe Timpane, who was one of the very best fighters in the light heart won't look on him. Then Kid Ernie will be in a bad position.

And strategy night at Grand Rapids, Mich. Russell landed out a few wallops. In fact, the press dispatches make the two men will suffer severely. The fight will be a good one, and the crowd will be large.

It is possible that there will be no bouts at Chicago for about two or three weeks. As it looks now, Philbin Hill is out of the game, and the Chicago fight is in jeopardy. In view of this, it is probable that the fight will be postponed.

Chris Morris, who fought Kid Goodman and Jimmy Harris, broke his leg, and is in a contest at Chicago, Pa., next Saturday night. Morris is a very good fighter, and his leg is a great asset. It should be an interesting contest. Each is a clever yet, but neither

EXETER FAVORITE OVER ANDOVER

Exeter will be a favorite over Andover in the big game between the two big schools on Saturday. Exeter has a very strong team, and Andover is a very good one. The game is expected to be a very close one, and the crowd will be large.

Last year Andover was given an unlooked-for triumph, and this season it looks as though it will be for another. Exeter has a very strong team, and Andover is a very good one. The game is expected to be a very close one, and the crowd will be large.

WHOLE WORLD OF SPORTS COVERED FOR THE BOSTON AMERICAN BY ITS CORPS OF EXPERTS

If He Continues His Good Work in Practice, He Will Be Harvard's Back

None of the Harvard regulars who played in the Indian game last Saturday were on the sidelines. Only about half of them were on the field in suits at all, Harv. Burr, Kinsale, Macdonald and Hall being absent a day of complete rest.

The coaches began to hammer at the defense of the variety men who did not get into the game on the eleven of variety men, but the second eleven by the Indians was too good to be in a twenty-five-minute timeout. The second team could do nothing with the defense that the variety men put up. Toward the end of the first period the second team were given the lead on the variety, twenty-five-yard line, but could make no headway and had to give up possession of the play.

The best feature of the afternoon's practice was the work of Hanley, who played at fullback on the substitute team. The big back played with a snap and drive that has not shown at any time before this year. On the first kick-off he made a return run of forty yards by first running and good use of the variety men, and then he ran the ball in to the end zone. Hanley's work in the game was so good that he would fit in very well in the game. He is a very good player and will maintain the speed and fight all the time.

How Variety Lined Up.

Whether Lou Leroy will play left and the game against Penn is a question. O'Brien was out yesterday and Leroy was given the call over him. Hall was not out, after the way in which the light-weight Hall was thrown about by the Indians at last Saturday there is not a great deal of chance that Hall will begin the game.

Kerns Back in Game.
Kerns, last year's quarter and most prominent man, is expected to begin work as a candidate for the eleven to-morrow. Kerns has been kept out on account of an operation for appendicitis, but Coach Reid is short on quarters and Kerns is being called in to play. The rain was falling steadily on Sunday, Field players were not in the game, withstanding the slippery ball, the variety men, Lockwood, Nichols, Wendell and Hanley, along to the players in good stead. Kerns, however, to them, and they were sure of catching his long strides.

PENN TEAM IS GIVEN HARDEST KIND OF WORK

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 7.—So disgusted were the Pennsylvania coaches with the work of the Quaker football team on Saturday last that they decided to give them the hardest kind of work. The coaches realized that they have only three days in which to remedy the defects in the team's play before the Lafayette game. There will be no practice on Thursday and Friday before the game with Harvard.

One thing that is troubling the Quaker coaches is the slowness that this year's eleven is showing. Little Stevenson did his best to drive the team on Saturday last, but they would not move. Penn realized that, in order to check the Quaker's slowness, with Reid at the head, hard answers, all in the line of the defense, and in order to get the team into the game, they decided to give them the hardest kind of work. The coaches realized that they have only three days in which to remedy the defects in the team's play before the Lafayette game. There will be no practice on Thursday and Friday before the game with Harvard.

This picture shows Torrey of Penn kicking a goal in practice on Franklin Field, Philadelphia. Johnson is holding the ball. The Quakers are working their hardest to get into trim for the game with Harvard Saturday.

FIT SUGGS TO FIGHT 'O'DRISCOLL'

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—Jimmy Connelly has agreed with Fitzsimmons to fight, after his fight with Jack O'Brien for the heavyweight championship of the world. The date of the fight will be decided in a few days or a week, and will be held at the Madison Square Garden.

Connelly's appearance since his fight with O'Brien has been a matter of much interest to the public. He is now in excellent condition and is expected to give a good account of himself in his fight with Fitzsimmons.

YALE LIKELY TO DROP COLUMBIA

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 7.—Dartmouth football is held by Yale at the door of Columbia in the game Saturday. Since Yale was so they witnessed deliberate attempts of Columbia players to injure Yale players and other attempts to injure Yale players. One man in authority said to the Yale team that they would not play with Columbia if they were to be so treated.

It is a fair belief that Yale will refuse to play Columbia after this game. CANCEL GAME AT WAL HAM

Waltham High and Somerville High football teams scheduled for this afternoon on the Waltham High grounds, have been cancelled because of the muddy conditions. The game was to have been played at 2 o'clock, but the ground was so muddy that it was impossible to play.

WOODRUFF FORS OPEN FOOTBALL

Coach George Woodruff of the Catholic Indian team has some very good ideas on the subject of obtaining more open play in football, over which there has been so much discussion recently. It would seem that the more open play the better the game would be, and Coach Woodruff is a man who is very good at running the ball.

Because of Protest by the Crimson Against Two of Quakers' Football Players, Many Followers of BROWN'S FEET TO BE VERY WEAK

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 7.—The season of the season in college football has been the protest of two Penn Quakers by Harvard. Almost every year about ten days before Penn is scheduled to meet Harvard there comes a rumor that the latter has been protesting, and has threatened something about one or more Quakers.

While there are no formal protests, quite a number of the Harvard officials are quoted as to the standing of some one of the Penn players. This year, however, the protest is a very real one. Let the Death Knell of Graft Ring To-day

In Almost Every State and City Up-
lings Against Political Grafting Michigan—Boston Favored in Direct Vote
at the Primaries

One fact that is highly significant in connection with almost every election in the cities and States of the Union to-day is that wherever there is an important contest it is a battle between the people and the grafters.

It seems as though the spirit of liberty, such as characterized the men of '76, has reappeared, and there is a pretty general desire and a pretty firm determination upon the part of the public to ring the death knell of grafting bossism in the management of public affairs.

This is so in Philadelphia. Under Mayor Weaver the residents of the city have massed themselves against bossism, fed and fostered by a system of graft and political debauchery such as this country, fortunately, has very seldom, if ever, seen elsewhere.

So colossal have been the robberies of the people by the political booneers of Philadelphia that when Governor Folk of Missouri, at a recent meeting there made some of the figures public the great throng of indignant listeners marched to the homes of some of the highwaymen contractors and threatened them with bodily harm.

In New York the rebellion against the powerful political machine that has run that city and robbed it with a ruthlessness that is just beginning to be clearly understood is more enthusiastic than in Philadelphia. In the most exciting campaign that city ever experienced William Randolph Hearst has fought to relieve the citizens of the metropolis of probably the most perfect grafting machine the world ever beheld.

In the Commonwealth of Massachusetts—nominally a Republican State—the actual issue of interest is the fight that Senator Lodge is making for his political existence.

Many Republicans are voting the Democratic ticket to-day in this State as they did last year—but for another reason. This year the reason is Lodge. Lodge, the boss. Lodge, the dictator. The people are tired of it.

In one respect Boston is more fortunate than her sister cities of Philadelphia and New York. The situation is such here that it is extremely difficult for a boss to arise who can absolutely dominate the political affairs of the city. The primary laws have looked to that. They are the safeguards of the people against such piratical combinations as Tammany Hall and the Philadelphia machine.

In this city the people may go to the polls and vote directly for the nomination of the candidate whom they desire. If any boss or clique of political grafters attempts to foist upon the people an undesirable candidate, members of that party can buy that candidate and his owners under an avalanche of votes at THE PRIMARIES.

With the ending of the State campaign in Massachusetts to-night the city campaign begins in Boston. The contest in this city campaign will be the same contest that is being decided to-day in Philadelphia and New York—the contest of the people against the grafters.

Let us hope that Philadelphia and New York will let Boston a good example. But let us not depend upon that example. Let us resolve that whatever the result elsewhere BOSTON SHALL BE CLEAN.

Some real work for honest government will have to be done in Boston in the next four weeks.

Close the Murder Dens of Boston

You have read the story in the papers. You know how pretty Agnes Geary, known on the stage as Ethel Durrell, came to her death. You know how her body, before it was dead, was dismembered, carried away in three suit cases in the dead of night, and thrown into the waters of Boston Harbor.

You know how the sea gave up its dead, and how the neglect of the criminals to remove the rings from the girl's fingers solved the mystery and brought their dead home to them.

If you are a father or a mother you have pitied the poor girl, barely more than a child.

Perhaps you have wept over the sad end of her young life, when she murmured, as she sank into her last unconsciousness, "I am a Roman Catholic. Pray for me."

Susan Agnes Geary has paid for her sin. May she rest in peace. Morris Nathan, the boy who truly loved her, and was as foolish as she, is not the greatest sinner in the story, and his found-out sin is punishing him to-day. PERHAPS AS MUCH AS THE LAW CAN.

HOW ABOUT THE OTHERS?

How about the people that run such vile establishments as that of the "Dr." Bishop Medical Company?

How about the men who really killed the little dancing girl; the men who dismembered and disposed of her still warm body, FORGETTING TO PITY HER BECAUSE THEY FEARED FOR THEMSELVES?

WHAT SHOULD BE DONE WITH THEM, AS A LESSON TO OTHERS?

And how about the dens that PUT A PREMIUM ON SIN by flaunting the case with which the CONSEQUENCES MAY SOMETIMES BE AVOIDED?

It is said there are MORE THAN THREE HUNDRED such places in Boston, gathering their victims from all over New England. That ALL their patients are not killed outright is no more a reason why these dens should be allowed to run than it is an excuse for urging a boy to drink because ALL drinkers are not drunkards.

These places are conducted in defiance of law.

It is the duty of the police to see that they are rooted out.

Let it never be said again that some other Susan Geary has met her death in such a den in Boston.

Lessons in Municipal Ownership XX. Labor a Partner in Public Works

By Professor Frank Parsons

WORKING men as a rule believe in municipal ownership. They understand that public ownership makes them virtually stockholders or partners in the street railways, lighting plants, etc., with a share in the control through their ballots. Just as a stockholder shares in the control of the company by his vote in the stockholders' meeting, and they know it is better to be partners in these important properties than to be merely servants and users.

They know that a management comparatively free from the private profit motive and representing the public, which has strong reasons to favor the improvement of labor conditions, is much more apt to raise wages and shorten hours than a private company aiming first, last and all the time at dividends.

Experience abundantly confirms this conclusion. In fact, the securing of better conditions for the workers is often regarded by municipalities as one of the principal reasons for municipalization.

In Glasgow, for example, when the old company asked for a new lease, one of the main conditions insisted upon by the city was an improvement in the conditions of labor, especially that the men should not be worked more than sixty hours per week.

The company would not agree to this, and their refusal was regarded as one of the strongest arguments for municipalization.

On assuming the management of the street railways, the city immediately shortened the hours of labor from seven and a half to ten and a half to nine hours per day and fifty-four hours per week, increasing the wages 15 to 25 per cent. at the same time, with further increments in subsequent years. Men who have served three years have pay which is 65 per cent. above the private company level, considering both hours and wages. That is the per hour is 65 per cent. above the company wage per hour.

In Liverpool, when the street railway was municipalized, hours were shortened and wages raised so that the wage per hour was 50 per cent. above the wage per hour paid by the private company.

At the same time that Liverpool and Glasgow doubled the wage rate they cut street railway fares in half, so that labor got twice as much for the commodity it had to sell and paid only half as much for the transportation it purchased. The public pays more for labor and sells transportation cheaper than a private company.

The same tendency to improve the conditions of labor has been manifested all over Great Britain where the cities and towns have municipalized the tramways.

In this country the only street railway that has been operated by city authorities has a similar record. The Brooklyn Bridge Tram Line, when under public management, paid $175 for an eight-hour day, while the private street railway companies running over the same bridge paid $150 for ten hours—$1,000 a year for the men public, against $100 a year for those in the private cars.

Moreover, the public bridge railway gave its men a two-week vacation with full pay, rubber coats and gloves and two uniforms a year, free medical attendance in case of injury and usually half their regular wages as long as needed. The employees of the private roads suffer from none of these advantages. For the sake of unloading the bridge line with the land line in one system the private cars have been leased.

In all postscripts and the express we have a strong contrast between public and private ownership in the treatment of labor in transportation services.

Postal carriers after the first year of municipalization received an average of $1,000 on an eight-hour day, while expressmen in the delivery service got $500 to $600 in the same, with $50 to $65 a month in most cases, or about $110 on the average, even for the men in charge of the delivery wagons in four hours per week, increasing the wages 15 to 25 per cent. at the same time, with further increments in subsequent years. Men who have served three years have pay which is 65 per cent. above the private company level, considering both hours and wages. That is the per hour is 65 per cent. above the company wage per hour.

In Liverpool, when the street railway was municipalized, hours were shortened and wages raised so that the wage per hour was 50 per cent. above the wage per hour paid by the private company.
